Why it’s time for Uber to get out of the self-driving car business

Waymo is buying up to 20,000 Jaguars and plans to rev up a driverless ride-hailing service

Self-driving cars may ultimately be safer than human drivers. But after a pedestrian's death, will the public buy it?

Experts say video of Uber's self-driving car killing a pedestrian suggests its technology may have failed